

TAMWAH EPK BIOGRAPHYS

Short Artist bio

Tamwah is a Song-woman, beat-maker and a dreamweaver, currently residing respectfully, on stolen lands, Bundjalung country (Byron Bay).

Sounding like a warm Tropical fusion of hip hop, reggae, samba & soul. Moving with her ancestors & healing intent, Tamwah seamlessly flows between soulful song bird & waxing lyrical on the mic. Live, Tamwah's vibrant, socially conscious music aspires to uplift & calls her audience to vibrate higher.

Tamwah's latest single "Love like water", is the title track off her self produced, album "Love like water". The concept behind this album was to amplify indigenous artists voices, advocate for water & co-create a diverse album with conscious artists between Australia & Barbados, her second home.

Tamwah is powered by love & plants!

Long Artist Bio

Tamwah is a Song-woman, producer, beat-maker and a dreamweaver, currently residing respectfully, on stolen lands, Bundjalung country (Byron Bay).

Sounding like a warm Tropical fusion of hip hop, reggae, samba & soul. Moving with her ancestors & healing intent, Tamwah seamlessly flows between soulful song bird & waxing lyrical on the mic. Live, Tamwah's vibrant, conscious music uplifts & calls her audience to vibrate higher.

Tamwah's latest debut self produced album "Love like water" flexes the artists finesse in song writing, collaborating, producing & her resilience as an artist in these strange times. The intention for this album was to amplify indigenous artists voices, female voices, advocate for water & co-create a diverse album with conscious artists between Australia, Barbados & Americas. In addition to the recent release of her album, the title track "Love like water", official music video was created between Byron Bay & Barbados. (Watch HERE <https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCHx7rJjsBB4YCwxW-zGb6hw> )

Tamwah career was stimulated by the unfortunate passing of her late husband & MC, Shawn Williams in 2010. When Shawn drowned suddenly on Tallows beach, Byron Bay, Tamwah knew she had to pour her spirit into music to heal. Knowing personally first hand how precious life is, Tamwah set out to use the gifts & voice she walks with. With a bachelor degree in Audio sound, learning as much as she could about music production & getting as much experience in the music industry as possible. Tamwah has a degree in Audio sound engineering (SAE) & now offers her production & song writing services.

Being female & indigenous in the Australian music industry has come with plenty of opportunities to flex her resilience. Some of the best music moments to date have been when she's rebelled against the mainstream & followed her spirit. Ever evolving & growing as an artist, Tamwah has collaborated with musicians from around the world that share a earth-conscious, social, & spiritual awareness. Her belief in conscious co-creation has blessed her path to work with some of her favourite song writers/ artist like Emily Wurramarra, roots reggae artist Saritah, Paris LaMont (Protoje & The Indignation, JA), MC Len Lama (I&I Tribe, NYC), Justin Atherley (UK), Zaynab Wilson (Canada) Kattimoni, Exodus & Flower (Barbados). In April this year, Tamwah was invited by NATSIMO to be 1 of 14, lucky participants in the prestigious "RESONANT", 3 day songwriting workshops at Studio 301 (Sydney) for Aboriginal & Torres Straits Islander Artists. Her latest album "Love like Water" has been receiving a lot of attention on Spotify nationally & internationally. Tamwah has been a feature artist on Spotify's curated Aboriginal & T.S.I "Deadly Beats", fronting the cover for May 2021 edition.

Tamwah is a independent artist who uses her platform as an artist to advocate for mama nature & create sacred spaces for first nation & female voices to thrive creatively.
